

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

PREFATORY NOTE

So few American Records of this family had survived, to furnish a basis for a History, and those so disconnected and incomplete, that to a novice adventuring it, the task presented almost insurmountable difficulties; yet these men have a very sure claim to our remembrance, based upon the very foundations of our country, as Founders of Colonies, and the whole dignity of the past is felt by every thoughtful person, to be preserved in such family records.

This short history can contain only a few of the records of this large family. To Mr. James E. Cory, of Shelby, Ohio, who has spent many years in careful research, is reserved the task of compiling a complete history of this family.

Mr. William M. Robinson, of Grand Rapids, Mich., Judge Charles E. Cory, of Fort Scott, Kan., and Mr. H. T. Cory, of San Francisco, Cal., are also authorities on the history of the family, and to each and all of these gentlemen I wish here to make glad and grateful acknowledgment for their valuable suggestions, gifts of interesting pictures, for their encouraging words, and personal interest in this work, and would also thank the Librarians for their unvarying courtesy, wherever consulted.

THE "GRATE BOOKE"

This is the Bible, given to John Cory, 1st, by his mother, as he was about to sail for America, and may well be called the most valued possession in the keeping of his descendants. It has been handed down, from father to son, for nine generations, and is now in the possession of William Smith Cory,<sup>9</sup> of Beaver County, Pa. (Elnathan,<sup>8</sup> John,<sup>7</sup> Elnathan,<sup>6</sup> Ebenezer,<sup>5</sup> Elnathan,<sup>4</sup> John,<sup>3</sup> John,<sup>2</sup> John<sup>1</sup>). It is mentioned in the wills of the first three Johns and also in the will of the latter's son Elnathan, who willed it to his son Ebenezer. It was printed in England in 1603, in the old type and quaint spelling of that period, contains 500 leaves of old English parchment; the pages 8 inches by 12 inches. It is in 5 editions, 4 in folio and 1 in quarto.

Mr. James E. Cory, of Shelby, Ohio, has spent much money and time in tracing it to its present resting place, and to this kindly gentleman we are all greatly indebted, for its interesting history.

He has described each chapter as being headed with a hand-illuminated initial capital, many of them containing numerous angels, of the finest and most beautiful workmanship.

The Corys are said to be of Pict, or Scandinavian origin, deriving their name from "Cori," a Roman Fort at Anandale in the Shire of Dumfries, Scotland. We also find "Karre" in the Roll of Battle Abbey, 1066. The name Corrie or Cori is Gaelic, and signifies a bowl-shaped hollow on a hillside, in which game usually lies.

Towards the 17th century, America was open to all the oppressed and discontented, as well as to all the adventurously inclined, in the Old World. From Holland they came here, in large numbers, to escape the Spanish yoke,—English Puritans, persecuted by the Stuarts, and Huguenot Refugees from France.

Overwhelmed by the blinding storms, that rocked the faith in which they were reared, and conscious of a new fibre in their moral being, which made them eager for freedom, for room to expand, each at his own need and in his own way, straining wistful eyes to a land of Promise, they came.

One would go to any length of sympathy with their difficulties, and misfortunes, for here they found many hard problems to face and met them with such great courage. Life was to them ordered upon strictly religious and disciplined lines, where the summons was altogether to use, and not at all to enjoyment. If the narrow principles that informed their attitude towards life, provoke in the sinful a smile, nevertheless, we realize how much the fabric of our lives is built upon these principles. They were certainly what our lax generation call "bigots," but bigotry in their time was a shining virtue and their great claim to the regard of their countrymen.

Such examples are a reinforcement, that weary humanity cannot spare, and we scan the dusty treasures of "Olde Bokes" to find their story. Sometimes exhausting, it is true, flavorless facts, from their brown, crumpled pages, but finding also much that is stimulating to enthusiasm, and numberless little revelations of personality, that are delightful. Books whose happy mission it is, often while pretending to no high consequence, to recreate for us "the grace of a day that is dead."

Among these books, may be found many interesting records of our Cory Ancestors, and by way of "gathering up the fragments that remain," I thankfully start on pilgrimage with John, 1st, determined not to part company with him, nor let the roads divide, until he has told me all his story, and all that life held so many years ago.

While subjecting them all to an untiring curiosity, we may hold friendly converse with them, content if we may catch a glimpse now and then of their friendly faces, and thankful too if we have caught sight of a few valuable truths on the way, and comfort and courage perhaps, "to ease our pilgrim shoon."

It is said all the Corys in this country, sprang from one of the four men of the name, who came to America, 1640-50.

Giles Cory, "the martyr," settled in Salem, Mass.; left no descendants.

Thomas Cory, settled in Chelmsford, Mass.

William Cory, settled in Portsmouth, R. I., and John Cory, called "of Southold," lived, it is supposed, for a short time in Massachusetts and then went to New Haven, Conn. It is not known if these four men were related.

In September, 1640, a party of 12 men from Connecticut under the leadership of Rev. John Young, of Southwold (Suffolk), England, crossed over to Long Island and founded the town of Southold, and of this body of 12 men was John Cory. He is called in the records a Quaker, but he must have been at first a Presbyterian, or Congregationalist, for he was one of the founders of the first Presbyterian Church of Southold, 1640.

The name is found in Burke's Peerage, his Landed Gentry, and Encyclopedia of Heraldry, and in the various Visitations of England. Though spelled originally Corrie, in Scotland, it has since met with many changes, viz: Cori, Corie, Curie, Currie, Korrie, Karre, Korry, Corry, Corye, etc.

It is generally supposed that in this country the name was first spelled Cory, changed at an early date to Corey, following in this, the example of many of the Puritans, who leaving England, during the Protectorate of Cromwell, changed the orthography of their names, possibly to escape identity in case of pursuit, into this country. John Cory may have felt the urgency of this inasmuch as his father was a prominent man in England, who had been knighted by Charles I. The Norfolk family, from which he sprang, certainly spelled the name Cory.

THE OLD CORY HOUSE

It stands on the original farm of John Cory, the immigrant, just a short distance east of Southold, Long Island, near the sound, built by David Cory, grandson of John Cory, when David was sheriff of Suffolk County, between 1729 and 1733. The farm was occupied by John Cory at least as early as 1665 and until his death in 1685. The following quotation, from a document attached to a shattered timber in the museum of the Long Island Historical Society at Brooklyn, refers to this house:

"On a Sabbath day in June, 1814, a British sloop of war, the "Sylph," and ten other war vessels, came from their anchorage in Gardner Bay into Long Island Sound, stopping opposite the house now occupied by Deacon Abraham Mulford, located near the shore three miles east of Southold village, for the purpose of destroying a vessel which carried a torpedo screwed into the ship's bottom, to be exploded by clockwork, and which, after annoying them greatly, had come up to that place for safety. On this Sabbath morning the family had gone to church at Southold, leaving their home in charge of a slave named Cuff. The British fired a few shots at the house, and Cuff fled to a hay-stack for refuge. A 24 pound ball went through the second story, perforating in its course this identical piece of timber. A year later the "Sylph" was wrecked on the Southold beach, losing 106 out of the crew of 111. A quantity of rigging, tackles, etc., was saved. Mulford claimed damages for sale of these articles which was allowed him by the Government."

I

JOHN<sup>1</sup> CORY, is first mentioned in the Town of Southampton, L. I., March 7, 1644, as a whale commissioner, for his district. He received a grant of land the following day. The date of his birth is not recorded, nor positively known. The date of birth of his eldest son, John,<sup>2</sup> is recorded as 1639, and it has been assumed the birth of his father was 20 or 21 years earlier, which would make John<sup>1</sup>'s birth about 1618 or 1619. In 1649, John<sup>1</sup> was a resident of Southold, L. I., as he and his wife Ann, or Hannah, witness a deed on that day, and he is recorded as one of the earliest settlers of Huntington, L. I., coming there from Southold in 1659. He was Town Clerk of Huntington, 1664. He was a Quaker. In 1659 Southold belonged to the New Haven Colony, and in May of that year, he refused to take the oath of allegiance.

New Haven, Conn., May, 1659.

“John Cory was called, and asked whether he refused to take said oath, to which he answered he had tendered to take oath, that he would be no Traitor, nor conceal no Treachery, but further he could not goe, as to binde himself to the obedience of such laws, as are yet to be made, To which the Corte replied, that he had been foreborne for some years, but that it must not be borne with any that live in Ye Jurisdiction, to persist, therein, for ye oath is safe, and not intended for a snare, for it is only ye wholesome laws made, or yet to be made, they are required to submit to. He was told if the oath was put in these words, that he should be subject to the scriptures, if persecutors should arise, and say, “This is the meaning of such and such a scripture” (which is not), and punish him for not obeying, that touches not his conscience. He was asked if he had any other end in view, yt. he might use, for his satisfaction. He said “No.” It was demanded, if he would take the oath, but he refused. Whereupon ye Corte declared "That there are others of Southold whose names are also returned, and yt. altho ye Corte might proceed with them, at this time, yet they would leave it, till Ye Corte in Oct. next, at which time he with the rest, are required to make their appearance, if in ye meantime, they take not said oath, and certify it to this Corte." He took the oath the following May, 1660, and was made a Freeman of Conn. in 1662.

He seems to have been a man of considerable means, for that time, as he owned several house lots in Southold and Huntington. He died in 1686, as his estate was inventoried March that year at £43, 3 sh., 4 p. His will names

II

The Cory Homestead, at Westfield, N. J., is still standing, and well repays a visit, for it is full of the most interesting Revolutionary associations. It is believed to have been built by John Cory,<sup>4</sup> between the years of 1735 and 1740. It was at that time a farm of many acres lying between the towns of Elizabeth and Westfield, now in Cranford. The house stands well back from the street, approached by a winding drive and footpath to the door. The long porch at the front and the bay window at side are said to be the only modern additions. The house is strongly and solidly built, and is evidently equal to serving as shelter for another 200 years or more. Many old elms and pines and shrubs on the grounds show evidence of great age. The great elm, shown in the picture, was spoken of by Eliakim Cory as being there when he was a child (b. 1772), and it was supposed then to be over 100 years old. The kitchen, in which the soldiers were quartered, at the time of the Revolution, in the winter of 1779, is full of interest. It has three windows, with the tiny panes of glass, 12 in each sash, similar to those so often seen in the old Colonial houses in New England. In the floor, under the middle window, is shown a trap door, which leads into a box-like place in the cellar, and this communicated with an underground passage, which extended the full length of the cellar, and beyond, about 50 or 60 feet further to the barn. Westfield was sacked by the British soldiers June, 1780. The soldiers, then quartered in this house, were enabled to make their escape through this underground passage, to the barn and from thence to the dense woods, which at that time surrounded the place. Children of David and Jemima Ross Cory:

Benjamin Sayre Cory was a physician and surgeon, educated in New York State, and later taking a post-graduate course in Canada. In the latter he established his practice. The roads in that day were often impassable, and his journeys to his patients, were made on horseback. The old saddle-bags, that always accompanied him, are now a valued possession in his family; also a quaint bill of expenses "For making 2 Doctors" made out by his father (the other doctor mentioned was another son, Dr. David Cory). In the so-called "Rebellion" of Canada, 1837, he was a regularly commissioned surgeon for the Prince Edward Co. Regiment, raised for active service against the Rebels. One of his sons recalls being shown by his mother, the old blue broadcloth military frock coat, he then wore, "with silver buttons all down the front."

Without being in the least austere, he was a man of great personal dignity, a very handsome man, tall and of a commanding presence, who added to his mental gifts the endowment of a superb physique. His judgments were always broad, sound and charitable. He held the Senior Wardenship of Christ Episcopal Church, in Waukegan, Ill., for many years. When President Lincoln made his first call for troops in the spring of 1861, he offered his services as surgeon, but was persuaded to withdraw the application.

In 1854 they moved from Wellington, Ont., and settled in Waukegan, Ill., where were his mother and a number of his brothers and sisters, with their families, and this circle of Corys he loved to call the "Cory Clan," or the "Tribe of Benjamin." Children:

- 66 James Young, b. Wellington, Ont., Oct. 12, 1828; d. at Forest Hill, Newark, N. J., June, 1900; m. at Waukegan, Ill., Oct. 12, 1852, Eliza Pope Kellogg, dau. of Dr. David and Sarah Prince Kellogg, of Waukegan, Ill.

John Dickinson, Jr., Commissioned Officers in Revolution, from Hatfield, Mass.; also, by right of descent, from David Cory, and Benjamin Sayre, soldiers in Revolution, from New Jersey.

Susan Lucy Dickinson, d. in Waukegan, Ill., Jan. 18, 1855, where she had established for herself a reputation for much benevolence. Great sweetness and gentleness testified to her warm affections, and theirs was a life of unaffected devotion to Christian ideals, and we were brought up after the strictest rule of New England Puritanism. Before the erection of a church in Waukegan, services were held regularly in the home of D. O. and Susan Cory Dickinson; afterward in 'Dickinson Hall,' an auditorium erected by D. O. Dickinson. Family prayers were never omitted for a day, and the Sundays were days in our youthful Calendar to be dreaded a week ahead. All the Church services must be religiously attended, and no diversions were allowed to lighten the long hours; though, perhaps as a profane indulgence, one was permitted occasionally to listen to a Bible story. Yet these early associations are a very real part of our lives, and can never loosen their hold upon us; nor would we have them: recalling us, as they do, again and again, to a sense of the eternal values."

D. O. Dickinson, d. in Waukegan, Ill., March 22, 1869. Besides his well earned reputation as a Christian gentleman, the records of his time furnish many evidences of his prominence as an active and public spirited man of affairs. He was a Charter Director of the Chicago & North-Western R. R., and for many years one of the organizers of the Chicago Board of Trade, first Mayor of Waukegan, and Postmaster there for several years, and for several years an Elder in the First Presbyterian Church of Waukegan.

FAMILY OF DICKINSON

Arms,—“Vert, a cross or, cantoned by 4 hound’s heads, of the 2nd.”

Crest,—A hound’s head erased, or.

Motto,—“Esse quam videri.” (To be, rather than to seem to be.)

The derivation of the name has been traced to Gautier de Caen, the 4th and youngest son of Rollo, the First Duke of Normandy, great grandson of Halfdan Huitbein, King of Norway in the 7th Century. He was given the Town and Castle of Caen for his inheritance. His great-grandson, also named Gautier de Caen, accompanied his kinsman, William the Conqueror, to England, and his name is found recorded on the Roll of Battle Abbey. It is claimed that the name passed from "de Caen" to its present form by adopting the usual Scandinavian way of adding "son" to the original name: thus de Caenson, sometime de Kenson, Diconson, Dickenson, Dickinson.

Army Record of Andrew Gordon Deacon.

He enlisted, a soldier, in Capt. E. S. Bragg's Co. (later Co. E —th, Wisconsin Volunteers), May 10, 1861, "was mustered into the U. S. Service, July 16, 1861. Lost his right arm at Antietam, Sept. 17, 1862. While wounded and sick with intermittent fever, was in a private house, in Kedysville, Md., and Armory Square Hospital, at Washington, D. C., 4 months. Was never a day off duty, up to the time he lost his good right arm. His State Commission reads:

"Promoted for soldierly conduct in action." He remained in the U. S. Service till the spring of 1868. He was two and one-half years in Eastern, Va., in charge of the Isle of Wight and Southampton Co.'s superintending election, and ratifying treaties between the blacks and whites, under General Schofield, and General O. O. Howard.

I have a very clear recollection of "Uncle Andrew" and "Aunt Amanda." He, as a kindly, genial man, a "gentleman of the old school," and she was a beautiful character. In her face was the radiance of a faith, that kept her soul as serene as the air of Spring, for she was a happy Christian. She died Feb. 15, 1880.

Frederick C., d. in infancy.

Eliza, d., a child of three years, in 1875.

James Young Cory died June, 1901. His wife, Eliza Cory, died in N. Y. City, Feb., 1903.

His career was an interesting one. At 14 years of age he left his home in Wellington, Ont. (1842), and went to Illinois, then in its pioneer days, where his father's brother, Dr. David Cory, and a sister of his father, Mrs. D. O. Dickinson, were then living. His uncle, D. O. Dickinson, was a prominent and influential man of his time, a merchant and banker and owned many vessels on the chain of lakes, carrying grain, for that was before the day of railroads.

His uncle soon took him into the firm of one of his business enterprises and later established him in business for himself, grain and commission, with the firm name of "Allen, Fairbanks, Cory & Co.," with himself as the company. This was in Chicago. His home was in Waukegan, a town 35 miles north of Chicago, beautiful for situation, on the shore of Lake Michigan. In this town he lived for many years, and married. Early in the 50's he bought the "Waukegan Gazette" of the then publisher, a Mr. Geer, and he published this paper during and several years after the War. During the War all his men went to the front, and he issued his paper, regularly, almost without aid, working night and day till he had broken his health down.

He was an ardent anti-slavery man, and a member of the "Underground Railway" who were secretly assisting the negroes to escape into Canada. (The old Blanchard House in Waukegan was one of the "stations" where they were secreted, on their way North). He was a member of the "Board of Equalization" in Springfield, Ill., at the time Lincoln was being nominated for President and was at the "Wigwam" in Chicago, when that Convention was held. He was always a staunch and enthusiastic Republican. He was at one time Private Clerk to the Speaker of the House of Representatives at Springfield, Ill. He was Postmaster of Waukegan, Ill., for 16 years, receiving two reappointments under President Lincoln, and two under President Grant. He was one of the Founders of the Lodge of Masons, of Waukegan, and although in later years he was not active in Masonry, he was a 32nd Degree man; and was identified with every movement for the betterment of the Town.

He was a prominent politician of his day in Illinois.

In 1868 he went West with a party of editors, among whom were Charles A. Dana and Bayard Taylor. In the party, also, were Gen. John A. Logan and Hon. Schuyler Colfax. They went up the Red River of the North, and had a most delightful trip, and he returned home greatly improved in health.

It was soon after this that he sold the "Waukegan Gazette" to Charles A. Partridge. In 1876 he ran for the office of Clerk of the Appellate Court, but gave way to a one-armed soldier. He entertained many noted men in his home in Waukegan. Among them might be mentioned Lincoln, Grant, Gov. Yates and Oglesby (Illinois "War Governors"), Col. "Bob" Ingersoll, Colfax, Gen. John A. Logan, Bayard Taylor and Charles A. Dana.

It was about this time that he was appointed Postmaster. About 1879 he left his home in Waukegan, and removed to New York City, where he became Chief Clerk of the Grain Department of R. H. Parks & Co. (Stock and Grain Brokerage). He was a most genial man and an exceedingly interesting talker. The bond of kinship was a strong article of his faith, and he was never more happy than in dispensing a bountiful hospitality in his beautiful home, "Forest Hill," Newark, N. J.

Fanny Young Cory Cooney is a clever artist, of great natural talent, illustrator of children's books and the various periodicals, notably "St. Nicholas," a magazine for children.

With the name of MacDougal is introduced a very interesting old Scotch family, a branch of the Campbells and MacDougals, Lords of Lorne and Dukes of Argyle, the same family as the present Marquis of Lorne.

Jessie MacDougal's family came to Waukegan, Ill., from Scotland, in 1854, and brought with them the keys of Dunnollie Castle, which was their home there.

It is described in the Scotch histories and in William Black's charming novel, "White Wings," and Walter Scott's "Lord of the Isles." It is situated in the Western Highlands, near Oban.

"Dunnollie Castle, nearby, was the ancient seat of the MacDougals, Lords of Lorne, one of whose descendants occupies Dunnollie House not far away. Little but the ivy-clad keep now remains. It was the scene of the famous encounter between Robert Bruce and the two MacDougal brothers, who were slain. The brooch of Robert Bruce fell in the encounter and is still in the possession of the Marquis of Lorne."

"On crossing the Firth of Lorne, Dunnollie rises near, with Dunstafnage in the distance."

David Abner Cory was very prominent in Montana commercially, politically and socially, although the scene of his earliest business years was laid in New York City and Chicago. In the latter city he was several years connected with the firm of Steele & Price Co., and in the interests of the firm traveled very extensively in the Far West, and became so enamoured with that section that in 1878 he removed to Montana, to remain permanently. He came via steamer on the Missouri River from Bismarck, N. Dak., which was at that time the terminus of the Northern Pacific Railroad. Nearly two weeks were spent on the river. From Fort Benton, the head of the river navigation, the transportation was by stage-coach. At that time the population of the Territory was about 35,000. He engaged there in the wholesale grocery business, with headquarters at Helena and branch stores in many smaller towns and mining camps. He engaged in other business enterprises, mines, etc. On the admission of the Territory into the Union, 1890, he was elected a member of the first Legislative Assembly, serving five months. He served a term as County Commissioner for Lewis and Clarke County and was Senior Warden of St. Peter's Episcopal Church in Helena many years. David Abner Cory died November 5, 1913, at his home in Helena, Mont.

The friendships he inspired were deep and lasting. Possessed of a strong sense of humor and an amusing satirical wit, yet the memory most potent is of his whole-hearted generosity, unflinching kindness and sympathy. He made his influence securely felt by his friendship, loyalty, help and advice, for he carried with him everywhere the divining rod of a kind heart, so that his loss brought a pang as of personal sorrow into many homes.

Steamers. Residence at Chicago. One dau., Sue Cochrane, at school in Boston.

The first few years of the married life of Eliakim and Sarah Cory were spent in Westfield. History seems to have invested this town with exceptional interest and it is beautiful, with its old elm-shaded streets. The approach to the Old First Church is especially beautiful, for a long lane of great elm trees almost hides any but a near view of the Church; but, as we are told by this town's historian, "be not beguiled by its newer and more beautiful aspect, into forgetting the great secrets, that have dropped into its dust, for this was a battlefield of the Revolution." In 1780 the town was sacked, by the British soldiers, and Grandma Cory (Sarah Sayre Cory) although only a small child, recalled the excitement and confusion; the flight of the inhabitants to the mountains; she herself being carried on horseback in the arms of an American soldier.

"The close of the Revolutionary War had been the signal for a general immigration into different parts of the country, with the hope, possibly, of bettering their condition, in places where the property had not so greatly depreciated, as in the home towns. The long contest had impoverished the land and many families who had in Colonial times enjoyed a competence and comparative wealth, now found themselves reduced to almost poverty as the price for their political independence."

In 1795 Eliakim Cory had left his home in Westfield, N. J., with his wife and two oldest children and accompanied by his parents, David and Jemima Cory and their children, and also the parents of his wife, Benjamin and Sarah Littell Sayre, moved to Ballston Spa, N. Y., where he continued to reside till 1817, when he removed to Hillier, Pleasant Bay, Prince Edward Co., Ont. Here they lived till about 1840, when they again moved, this time to Illinois.

The following note, from "Pioneer Life on the Bay of Quinte" (published in Toronto, Ont., 1905): "Eliakim Cory came from Saratoga, N. Y., in 1817, and purchased 250 acres of land, at Pleasant Bay, on the South Shore of the Lake, at Hillier. He then returned to New York for his family, all of whom accompanied him to Canada, with the exception of his two eldest daughters, Rachel and Polly, who had married and remained behind in New York."

Ballston, N. Y., was named for Rev. Eliphalet Ball, who with a Colony of his parishioners from Bedford, settled near the outlet of Long Lake, 1770. The place was first called "Ball-Town," then "Ball's Town" and finally "Ballston."

The date of the Indian Deed is 1763, but it was not incorporated as a village until 1807. The semi-Centennial was celebrated July 4, 1826. One of the Committee was David Cory. He was a son of David and Jemima Ross Cory, and brother of Eliakim. After the death of his first wife, who was a Ballston woman, Mrs. White, he married Judith Tiffany, a resident of Rochester, and they moved there, and his descendants live there now.

The site of the Cory home in Ballston is still called by their name, "Cory Castle," though the house was long since demolished.

The earliest school in Ballston of which there is record was opened in 1803 in the Baptist Church, built that year. It was a Public School and was discontinued on the building of the "Academy," on Galway Street, 1811. (The south side of Galway Street was called "Science Street.")

In the summer of 1812 was organized "Milton Union School," soon changed to "The Academy," opened by the Rev. Darius Griswold, a graduate of Williams College, as principal. Later Mr. Samson was Principal of this school till 1825.

The first Private School was opened by Miss Pitkin, May 2, 1814:

"LADIES' SCHOOL.

"Miss Pitkin will open a school for Ladies on Monday, 2nd of May, at Ballston Spa, where will be taught the following branches, viz: Reading, writing and grammar, history, geography, with use of maps and globes. #### MASONIC BODIES IN BALLSTON.

In a list of names of men of Ballston who have served as "Most Excellent High Priest" is found the name of Eliakim Cory. "Franklyn Lodge" was the first Masonic Society founded in Ballston, May 16, 1794.

The second Masonic body founded there was "Warren Chapter, No. 23." "Royal Arch Masons" organized April 4, 1808, and the Charter granted Feb. 19, 1809, with the name of Eliakim Cory as first "High Priest."

A marked characteristic of this line of Cory (from Eliakim) might be noted in the strong artistic strain showing itself in not a few of its members.

Harriet Clench, dau. of Eliza Cory Clench, was a successful exhibitor of her paintings in London galleries a few years ago, we are told. Besides may be mentioned the noted cartoonist, J. Campbell Cory, and his sister, F. Y. Cory, who illustrates for "St. Nicholas" and other magazines and children's books. Both are possessed of great natural talent.

B. Cory Kilvert, with his inimitable "Kilvert Kids," and Kate Thomson Cory, who for several years was a successful designer of wall papers; now, and for several years past, living in Arizona, where she finds exceptional interest, in the Indians, their life and history, and her studies of them are most sympathetic and interesting. Perhaps this artistic strain may be noted in a larger number by a most careful selection shown by them all—a happy faculty of alighting upon all that is finest and best in books, pictures, artistic appointments and home furnishing, etc., and I might mention a keen love of travel characterizes them all.

As a rule, I think the reminiscences of childhood are a tedious thing, and hold the secret of their golden glow only for the possessor, so my tribute to "Grandma" Cory will be short. Bowed with great griefs and great joys, and white haired with the full burden of her venerable years (87), yet one may seek far to find so blithe and contented a spirit. Nothing seemed to disturb her soul's serenity, always luminous with cheerfulness, and her dainty be-ribboned and be-frilled caps framed a face that was grave and sweet. One of her grandchildren recalls her to mind as always industriously knitting, while singing softly to herself her precious hymns, only interrupting the occupation to call upon her daughter to pick up the fast disappearing stitches. An invitation in my childhood to accompany her to Church was always eagerly accepted. She was given a comfortable seat in a rocker placed near the pulpit, and "O Joy!" facing the congregation, where infinite entertainment was offered, and I was given a place near her on one of the lower steps leading to the pulpit. Should the entertainment pall at the "10thly" or "12thly" a devotional patience was fostered by smuggled sweets, and to my childish mind, she seemed always to have "something up her sleeve" (or down her pocket), to surprise, or please.

Eliakim Cory seems to have been a man with a good deal of character, a strong sense of duty, and a great stickler for precision, but, if I might offer a series of friendly confidences, manifestly, a man stern, and of an unbending rectitude, who had perhaps not found the world satisfactory, or his place in it disappointing.

These lines from Eliakim Cory prove eligibility to the following National Societies:

- Sons of the American Revolution ("S. A. R.")
- Daughters of the American Revolution (D. A. R.)
- Society of Colonial Dames.
- Society of Holland Dames.
- Society of the Huguenots.
- Society of the Colonial Wars.
- Society of the War of 1812.
- Sons of Veterans.
- Daughters of Veterans, etc., etc.

GUINON (GENNUNG) HUGUENOT DESCENT

The Revocation of the Edict of Nantes, that notable blunder of Louis the XIV, banished from France a considerable number of enlightened citizens. These dispersed among the neighboring nations, carrying with them their various industries. The greatest exodus of the Huguenots from France was between the years of 1681 and 1698. Among those who found safe harborage in America was Jean Guinon, born in the Province of Saintongue, near Rochelle. As a Huguenot he left France with others of his faith, going first to Leyden, Holland, thence to Amsterdam, from which port he sailed for America, Aug. 2nd, 1657, in the ship "Dreatvat," landing at New Amsterdam, (New York). Jean Guinon is noted in the list of passengers, so not a child. At the time of his marriage his residence is given as Leyden, Holland. He joined the Huguenot settlement at Flushing, L. I., and is first mentioned in the records of that town, Oct. 9th, 1676, as "a valuable proprietor" owning three acres of land there, and several head of cattle.

In the list of inhabitants, of Flushing, 1698, Jean Guinon and wife, Margarita, are mentioned, with three in the family, and two negro slaves. He was married at the Dutch Reformed Church in Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 13th, 1662, to Margarita, (Grietic) Sneden, dau. of Jan and Grietic Jans Sneden.

Jeremiah Guinon (Gennung) son of Jean and Margarita Sneden, was born in Flushing, 1671, married 1690, to Martha—died before 1748. Between the years of 1722 and 24 he moved to Westchester, N. Y., to "Cornell Neck" or "Old Ferry Point." At the time of his death he was living in "North Castle," Westchester Co., New York. Records consulted:

Records of the Dutch Reformed Church, Brooklyn; History of the Gennung Family; History of the Denman Family; Hatfield's History of Elizabeth; Clayton's History of Union Co., N. J.

SNEDEN FAMILY

Jan Sneden is recorded as being "descended from a family long at Amsterdam," (Holland). He sailed from that port Dec. 23rd, 1657, in the ship "St. Jan Baptiste" bound for the Dutch Settlement, of New Amstel, on the Delaware River. He soon left there and went to Harlem, N. Y., as he is mentioned in the Dutch Records of New Amsterdam as a Hollander, 1661. He is recorded as one of the first permanent settlers of New Harlem, now Harlem, New York City.

At the division of land there, in 1661, he received Lot 18, a strip of land running from the foot of 109th street, N. W., to S. W. corner of Jefferson Park, and across 1st and 2nd and 3rd Aves. to a place between 3rd and Lexington avenues with the end, facing N. W. The north corner, 117th street, about one third of the block east of Lexington avenue. The house stood at 115th or 116th street. He was No. 18 of the original owners of Harlem, N. Y. The death of Jan Sneden was the first to be recorded in Harlem, and his wife was the second. His widow, "Grietic" Jans Sneden is mentioned as holding land in Harlem, Mar. 14th, 1662. In her will, probated in 1728, she is called "Margaret Gennung." Their estate was bought for the Daniel Tourniers Estate. At the time of her marriage to Jean Guinon she was a member of the Dutch Reformed Church of New York, (called "Church in the Fort"), and all her children were baptized there and at Jamaica, L. I., she is recorded as subscribing generously.

ROSS FAMILY

Arms.—"Gules, 3 lions rampant, or."

Crest.—"An eagle displayed, or."

Motto.—"Spem successis alit."

Our first American ancestor of this name was George Ross who is recorded as a native of Scotland, "from near Ayreshire," born 1635. George Ross, 1st, came to America and settled first in New Haven, Conn. He is recorded as one of the "Planters" of that town. He was married there in 1658 to Constance Little, dau. of Richard Little, also one of the New Haven "Planters." He lived in Albany, N. Y., for a time, but soon moved to Elizabethtown, N. J., 1670. He was made a Freeman the same year. (Some records say "before 1669.") He became an important man in the new home of his adoption as in New Haven. He was one of the Founders of the First Church of Elizabethtown, (the first church founded in the "Province of New Jersey"). He was one of the two deacons of that church and always in the records called "Deacon George Ross." He was a member of the first General Assembly of New Jersey and was the same year, 1683, appointed Lieutenant of the "Chief Rangers," (the first military company of New Jersey).

March 27, 1676, he and his wife are recorded as owning 120 acres in Elizabeth and there are records of many additional acres after that. "Deacon George Ross" was appointed, May 1st, 1683, "Judge of Small Causes," (recorded as the first judge in the "Province of New Jersey"). He died in 1702. He was one of the first "Associates" of Elizabethtown.

George Ross, 2nd, oldest son of George Ross and Constance Little Ross, was born in Elizabethtown, and was married there to ———. He died in Elizabethtown, Oct., 1650. He is called in the Records "George Ross, Jr." He was a prominent man and a member of the General Assembly several terms.

A petition to the New York Council, 1699, is signed by George Ross, Jr., and John Ross, his son; also by John Cory, John Littell, and Daniel Sayre.

In 1694 some contributors to the support of the Rev. John Harriman, one of the early pastors of the First Church of Elizabeth, were "Deacon George Ross" 1 £ 10 sh.; George Ross, Jr., 10 sh.; John Ross, 10 sh, and Samuel Sayre, 6 sh.

George Ross is recorded as one of the trustees of the First School organized in New Jersey, called the "Academy."

Hatfield's History of Elizabeth, Vols. 1, 2, and 3, Archives of New Jersey; Clayton's History of Union Co., N. J.; History of Essex Co., N. J.; Riker's History of New Jersey; Littell's "Passaic Valley."

John Ross, son of George Ross, Jr., was born in Elizabethtown about 1700. He was one of the Incorporators of Elizabeth, and it is said he wrote the petition to the General Court, Feb. 8th, 1739. The following references to him are found in the various histories of New Jersey:

"Mr. Ross was named in the Borough Charter one of the Aldermen of the Corporation, and became, in 1748, Mayor of the Borough," and "Mr. John Ross was one of the original Aldermen of the Borough, so named and appointed in the Royal Charter granted by George II, signed Feb. 8th, 1739."

In 1748 a lottery was formed to raise money to build the "parsonage," "under the care and management of John Ross Esq." He was one of the founders of Westfield.

"Judge John Ross, of Westfield, was one of the Judges of Essex Co. Court, and a Master in Chancery. He was a son of George Ross, Jr., and grandson of 'Deacon George Ross,' who came to Elizabeth from New Haven, Conn., 1670. Deacon Ross married in New Haven, Constance Little, 1658. His son, George, died in Elizabeth Oct., 1750. Judge Ross was born in Elizabeth, and spent his life in that borough. He was one of the Charter Aldermen of the Borough. He died in Westfield, August, 1754." He married Sarah. Both are buried in the Westfield churchyard. "Here lies the body of John Ross, Esq., who departed this life Aug. 21st, 1754. Age 56 yrs." and "Here lies the body of Sarah, wife of John Ross, Esq., who departed this life Aug. 19th, 1759. Age 54."

"August, 1754.

"Wednesday morning last, departed this life, after a short, but painful illness, John Ross, Esq., one of the Judges of Essex Co., and Master in Chancery. He was a gentleman of a very affable and obliging disposition, of steady, and unshaken principles, a strict observer of law and justice, and a truly honest man. In his death the country have really a sensible loss, and a worthy family an irreparable damage, which nothing can so much alleviate as the lively hope and assurance of his being translated into a state of blessed immortality. This testimony is now given of him by a friend. Judge Ross was son of George Ross, Jr., son of Deacon George Ross who came here from New Haven in 1670, having married there, 1658, Constance Little. Judge Ross was one of the original Aldermen of the Borough, so named in the Royal Charter, granted by King George II in 1739."

Jemima Ross, dau. of Judge John Ross, and Sarah, his wife, was born in Westfield, N. J., April 16th, 1752. She married July 12th, 1769, at Westfield, David Cory, son of John Cory, 4th, and Martha Denman.

SAYRE FAMILY

Arms.—“Gules, a chevron, argent, between 3 seagulls, of the 2nd.”

Crest.—A hand erect, proper holding a griffin's head, or.”

Motto.—“Sae and Doe.”

The name of Sayre occurs as far back as 1316, when William Sayre was a landholder in Hinwich, Bedfordshire. Hinwich is a hamlet one-half mile from Poddington. The Sayre Home there was “Sharnebrook.” Another Sayre home, 4½ miles distant, was “Harold.” The old Poddington Church contains these inscriptions:

“Here lyeth ye body of Mr. Wm. Sayre, who departed this life, Nov. ye 16th, 1747, aged 82.”

“Here lyeth ye body of Sarah, the wife of Mr. William Sayre, who departed this life, Dec. 27th, 1732, aged 73.” “A constant comer to ye House of God. Lived and died a good Christian.”

1. Thomas Sayre, the American founder of the name, was born July 20th, 1597, at Leighton Buzzard. Baptized at “All Saint's” Church. His parents, Francis Sayre and Elizabeth Atkins, were married in the same church, 1591. Said Francis Sayre was son of William Sayre and Alice Spuyre, of “Sharnebrook.” Thomas Sayre came to America and settled first in Lynn, Mass. In 1648 Thomas Sayre and his son Daniel were grantees of the Indian Deed of Southampton, L. I. He was chosen one of the three men to govern the town affairs, Oct. 6th, 1651. He built his house in Southampton, 1648, and it was standing till 1912, and said to be the oldest English-built house in New York state.

2. Daniel Sayre was born in Bedfordshire, England, in 1657, he is mentioned as being in the “Whaling Squadron.” He was assessed in 1683 on three polls and 207 £, 3 sh 4 p. He lived in Bridgehampton, L. I. He married, 1st, Hannah, dau. of Christopher and Frances Foster. He died in 1708. His will is dated Aug. 21st, 1707. In it he bequeaths to his son, Samuel, from whom we are descended, “My tow (2) negro slaves, Gordg (George?) and Moll. These to be sold by my son and the money that they fetch to be equally divided amongst my children.” At the end is added, “It is also my desire that my negro woman, may have liberty to chose her master, when she is sold, and that she may have all her cloathes, and her box, and all her things, with her.”

3. Samuel removed to Elizabeth, N. J., where, in 1696-7, he subscribed 6 shillings to the support of Rev. John Harri-man, one of the first ministers of the First Church of Elizabeth.

4. Daniel Sayre, son of Samuel, lived in Elizabeth, N. J. He married Rebecca Bond, dau. of Benjamin Bond. His will was dated "Trenton, N. J., Feb. 2nd, 1760." In it he bequeaths to his son Benjamin 30 acres, Benjamin to pay to his brother John £15 "when he himself comes of age," and Jedediah to pay to John, "when he himself comes of age, £15."

5. Benjamin Sayre, son of Daniel, born Feb. 3rd, 1743; married, 1st, Rachel —, who died July 23rd, 1767, and is buried in the Westfield churchyard. He married, 2nd, June 19th, 1768, Sarah Littell Frazee, widow of Simeon Frazee. She had four children by her first marriage, one of whom was Eliza, who married Chas. Clarke, a son of Abraham Clarke, one of the Signers of the Declaration of Independence. He died at Milton, N. Y., August 10th, 1810. She died in Lyons, N. Y., at the home of her dau., Mary Sayre Potter, June, 1832. When he married his second wife he had four children by his first wife, Rachel, and there were four children by his second marriage, Moses, Rachel, died young; Sarah and Mary.

1. Moses, born 1769; married Phebe. He moved with his brother-in-law, Eliakim Cory, to Ballston, N. Y., and thence to Oneida Co., where he died, 1823. His dau. Jane, married David Allen Warren, and one of her sons was James Sayre Warren, a wealthy wall paper manufacturer of N. Y. City. He died in that city, 1890. One of his daus., Sarah, married Thomas Barbour, the noted linen merchant, of N. Y. City and Paterson, N. J. One of Moses Sayre's sons was James, who was a very prominent and wealthy man of Utica, N. Y. Mr. Theodore Sayre, now living in Utica, is his son. The latter built a very beautiful church in that city, a memorial to his father, and it is called "The Sayre Memorial Church." Mary, youngest dau. of Benjamin and Sarah Sayre, born March 7th, 1778; married, 1st, in Ballston, N. Y., Nathaniel Job Potter. Lived first in Seneca Falls, N. Y., later in Canandagua, N. Y., where he died, 1810. She married, 2nd, Rev. Francis Pomeroy, Presbyterian minister of Seneca Falls. She died at Lyons, near Rochester, N. Y., Dec. 16th, 1866. Her son Henry Sayre Potter, born 1798, died in N. Y., 1884, and was called, at the time of his death, one of the wealthiest men in the State.

6. Sarah Sayre, dau. of Benjamin and Sarah Littell Sayre, was born in Westfield, N. J., March 8th, 1774; married June 19th, 1791, to Eliakim Cory.

THE FOSTER FAMILY

Arms.—"Argent, on a bend wavy, sable, 3 buck's heads cabossed, or."

The Foster family is recorded as one of the oldest in England, descended from Forestier, who was Forester or Keeper of the Forest or Hunting Fields, for William the Conqueror. They were the ancestors of the Counts of Flanders and can thus claim Royal Descent from Alfred the Great and Charlemagne. The King's Forestier was granted many Lordships in England, but the principle seat of the family was for several hundred years Bamborough Castle, in Northumberland. From here later generations scattered and settled in Wiltshire, Somersetshire, Bedfordshire and Berkshire. "Aldermaston," in Berkshire, was one of the principle seats, and here lived, in 1570, Sir Wm. Foster of "Aldermaston," son of Sir Humphrey Foster, Kt. The Visitation of Somerset derives the descent of Christopher Foster from William Foster of Reading, Berkshire, a younger brother of Sir Wm. Foster, of "Aldermaston," son of John Foster, of Reading, Berkshire, and Margaret, dau. of Nicholas Servington, of Langford (Wilts).

Christopher Foster, son of John and Margaret Foster, was born in Reading (Berks), 1603. He came to America, 1635, with his wife, Frances (born in England, 1607), on the ship "Abigail," landing at Boston June 15th. They lived first at Lynn, Mass., where they were granted 60 acres. In 1651 they moved to Southampton, L. I. He was made a Freeman of Boston April 27th, 1637.

Hannah Foster, dau. of Christopher and Frances Foster, married Daniel Sayre, son of Thomas, first of the name in this country, at Southampton, L. I.

Burk's Peerage gives the following regarding the "Forsters or Fosters, of "Aldermaston":

"The family of Forster, or Foster, is of great antiquity in England. From Thomas Foster, a younger son of Anthony Foster, (of "Bamborough" in Northumberland,) and Thomasine, dau. of Sir Edward Bray, descended the branch of this family, long seated at "Aldermaston," (Berks).

1. Anthony Foster and Thomasine Bray, of "Bramborough Castle," Northmd.

2. Thomas Foster.

3. Thomas Foster married dau. and heiress of Harpden, of "Harpden" of Oxon.

4. Humphrey of "Harpden," married Alice, dau. of Thomas Honor, of Oxon.

Alice, dau. of Sir Stephen Popham, Knt., died 1500.

married Elizabeth, dau. and heiress of John de Lamere, of "Aldermaston," (eldest son of Sir Thomas de Lamere, Knt.)

11. Hannah Foster, dau. of Christopher and Frances Foster, married at Southampton, L. I., to Daniel Sayre, son of Thomas, 1st.

BOND FAMILY

Arms—"Argent, on a chevron, sable, three bezants, of the first."

Motto—"Non sufficit orbis."

The Bonds were Puritans who came to America from Kent Co., England, 1639. Robert Bond, the first of the name in this country, lived for a short time in Lynn, Mass. He moved to Southampton, L. I., 1643, and lived for a short time in Easthampton, L. I., thence to Elizabeth, N. J. He is recorded as the first Justice of the Court of Easthampton. He was an educated man and came to New Jersey highly recommended by Gov. Winthrop of Massachusetts. He at once took a very prominent place in the public affairs of Elizabeth, "his influence being second only to John Ogden's." He was an intimate of the latter. John Ogden married Jane, a sister of Robert Bond—and Robert Bond married Hannah Ogden, a sister of John Ogden. Robert Bond came to Elizabeth, 1665, and was one of the "Associates." He was a member of the First General Assembly of New Jersey, May 26th, 1668, and several terms subsequently. Jan. 2nd, 1667, Gov. Carteret appointed him his Council, and March 13th, 1675, Justice of the Peace. He married, first, in Elizabeth, Hannah Ogden. After her death he married in Newark, N. J., Mrs. Mary Roberts, 1675. He died in Newark, 1677. All his children were by his first wife. He was 81 years old.

1. Robert Bond and Hannah Ogden.

2. Joseph Bond, son of Robert, 1st, and Hannah, settled in Elizabeth and died there, 1709, leaving two sons, Robert, 2nd, and Benjamin.

3. Benjamin Bond, son of Joseph, settled on a farm between Newark and Elizabeth which was occupied by his descendants till 1869. He died in Elizabeth, 1760, (80 yrs. old). His wife's name was Susanna—"She was a kind, useful woman, and took an interest in teaching the neighboring children. There were few schools, and the small children were unable to attend on account of the distance." These brothers were men of education, for Robert, 1st, was a member of the Royal Governor's Council, and Benjamin was supposedly a Lawyer, for he had full power to defend the titles held by the purchasers from the Indians, which they succeeded in maintaining. "Benjamin Bond was a pious man. He had family worship daily and was a strict observer of the Sabbath."

4. Rebecca Bond, dau. of Benjamin and Susanna Bond, born in Elizabeth, married in 1740 to Daniel Sayre, son of Samuel, (they were the parents of Benjamin Sayre, Grandma Cory's father).

THE DENMAN FAMILY

Arms.—Argent, on a chevron between three lion's heads erased, gules; 3 ermine spots, or."

Crest.—A raven, rising, sable.

Motto.—"Prudentia et Constantia."

From Martha Denman Cory we have one Huguenot, and two interesting Dutch descents. She was the dau. of John Denman, 2nd, son of John, the pregenitor of that family in America. He was born in England, 1621, at Gravesend, near London, which port he left for America, Sept. 3rd, 1635, with his widowed mother, Mrs. Judith Stoughton Denman. In this country they settled first in Dorchester, Mass., where she had two brothers living, Israel and Thomas Stoughton. Judith Stoughton Denman, was the dau. of Rev. Thomas Stoughton, Rector of Coggershell, England, and Elizabeth, his wife. Rev. Mr. Stoughton had three sons, Thomas, Israel and John. The latter was Pastor of St. Mary's Church, Alderbury, London. He was persecuted by Archbishop Laud, but in three days was reinstated. He never came to America. Israel and Thomas were both first settlers of Dorchester, Mass. Israel returned to England and was made Lt. Colonel in Cromwell's Army. Judith Stoughton Denman died in Dorchester, Mass., 1639.

John Denman, 1st, came to Long Island, 1667, and bought land in Southampton and also had land granted him by Gov. Dongan, 1668.

John Denman, 2nd, came from Southampton, L. I. It is recorded of him: "John Denman treated with three Indian chiefs for New Town, L. I." dated Oct. 3rd, 1662. He died there 1713. He married Mary Gennung (Guinon), dau. of Jeremiah, son of Jean Guinon, a French Huguenot living in Flushing, L. I. After the death of John Denman, 1713, his family sold all their property in Long Island and moved to New Jersey. For one of their plots of land they received £350. Their dau. Martha married John Cory in 1738. She was born 1706. They settled in Elizabethtown and the family gave £350 toward the erection of St. John's Episcopal Church there. Their home was in Westfield, that part now Cranford. The homestead still stands to-day and in the possession of a Denman, remarkable as one of the few places showing a clear title for over 250 years, a mortgage never having been placed upon it. All the children and grandchildren were baptized in St. John's Episcopal Church, in Elizabeth. They were all members of that Church until the Revolution when it was closed and they then attended the Presbyterian Church. There were two slaves in the family, Ann and Jude, the former 45 years in their service, and the latter, 60 years. Both are buried in the burial plot, in Elizabeth, with the members of the Denman family.

The Denmans are recorded as a family of wealth and culture for that time and possessed of many luxuries. John Denman's "Bokes and riding chair," are mentioned in the inventory of his effects. They always kept a pew in the Presbyterian Church and entertained all Ministers who came to preach in the "Olde Log Schoole Hous," where services were first held.

SCOTCH HISTORY OF THE FAMILY OF CORRIE

The first one of the name to be recorded is found in the seal of one Peter de Corrie, with the Corrie Crest, a griffin's head attached to a Charter of Melrose, A. D., 1170. This is undoubtedly the seal of the Father of the Peter de Corrie who fought at the Battle of Largs (38 miles from Glasgow), on the 2nd and 3rd of Oct., 1263. Peter challenged Haco, King of Norway, to single combat and was slain by Nicholson, one of the Chiefs of the Norwegian Army.

In 1194 and 1214 we find Hugh de Corrie's signature as witness to two deeds by William de Brus and his name is first in the list of the Annandale witnesses to a charter of Robert de Brus, A. D. 1218. He is recorded as present at the Coronation of "William the Lion" at Edinborough, and his name is mentioned several times as being present at the Court of this King, 1165-1214. In 1243 Robert de Corrie is witness to a charter and his death is recorded in 1245. In 1271 Nicholas de Corrie was Steward of Annandale. Lands in Scotland when held by a subject by the tenure called "regality," or with royal privileges, fell to the crown by forfeiture, or failure of heirs.

The magistrate appointed by the Crown to hold the office of Sheriff received the name of Steward, probably on account of the large revenues which it became their duty to collect, and to pay to the Exchequer.

In the inventory of a Charter granted to the Gordons of Kenmure, the first, and thus the most important witness was "Sir Donald, son of Corrie." (Sir Robert Douglas puts the date of this Charter as 1276.) Sir Wm. Fraser, C.B., in his "Book of Caerlaverock," Vol. II, gives a copy of a Charter, circa 1290, to which Nicholas de Corrie is a witness. In the "Public Record" Office in London, among the historical documents 1286-1306, is found a "Writ by the Gaurdians of Scotland ordering the Chamberlain, Sir Alexander Baliol, to pay to Sir Walter de Corry, Keeper of the Castles of Dumfries, Wigton and Kirkcudbright, his expenses to the amount of 40 marks sterling." (Bain's "Calendar of Documents.")

Sir Walter de Corrie granted a receipt on the following day at Linlithgow, to the amount of £10 sterling in part payment.

April 27, 1296, Sir Walter de Corry holds certain lands in Kirk Andrews and part of Levyntone, "which last was burnt and lies waste," and on Sep. 13, 1274, he "does homage to the King at Windsor, (Edward I) for the portions of lands held in capite by him as cousin and one of the heirs of Helenisa de Levyntone, wife of Eustace de Baliol, deceased." In Oct.,

1279, Walter de Corry is relieved of "Common Summons" in Cumberland because he is with the King of Scots.

"Nov. 3rd, 1292: In a Court at Carlile, Walter, son of Sir Walter de Corrie and others, sue Robert de Brus, Sr., and Christiana his wife, for a 6th part of the half of the Manor of Glasonby which belonged to Helenysa de Aykton, neice of the Plaintiff." Bain tells us, in his "Collection of Documents," relating to Scotland, A. D., 1108-1272, Vol. I, that "the Corries, in common with most of the other land-owning families of Dumfrieshire, would seem to have been located in Cumberland, occupying certain lands therefor which the Princes of Scotland were wont to do homage and service to the Kings of England, as lords paramount of this Scottish principality."

In the year 1296 all Scotch noblemen (except William de Wallace), took oath of fidelity, for themselves, and their heirs, to King Edward I, at Roxburgh and Berwick and other Scottish towns.

The documents which recorded them, are preserved with the names, and seals attached, and are called the "Ragman Roll."

On this "Ragman Roll" are found the names of Sir Walter de Corrie, and that of his son Nicholas de Corrie.

With the exception of the Bruces, the Dumfrieshire Lairds seem generally to have kept the oath. Sir William de Carlile, brother-in-law to Robert Bruce, did not join the Scots till 1317 and undoubtedly the English yoke would have been earlier shaken off, if there had not been such division, among the leading men in Scotland.

"June 19, 1296, Sir Walter de Corry, Knight, and Nicholas de Corry, his son, of the Shire of Dumfries, do homage to King Edward, at Stirling."

"In 1302, Sir Walter de Corry pays 33 £ 6s. 8p. for the relief of his lands in Annandale." (Bain's Documents.)

"Oct. 20, 1303, Inquisition at Carlile, finds that Sir Walter de Corry, deceased, held lands in Levyntone of the King of England, 'in capite.'" Walter de Corry, son of said Sir Walter, is next heir and is 22 years old. In 1306 Gilbert de Corrie is recorded as Keeper of Lochdoon Castle, (hereditary keeper), and shortly after this, the family added greatly to their possessions in Dumfrieshire, by the marriage of Robert de Corrie, with Susanna Carlile, dau. of Sir William Carlile and Margaret Bruce, sister of the King (Robert Bruce).

A Charter of lands in Annandale from Edward Baliol (calling himself "King") to Henry Percy, ("Hotspur"), is signed by Gilbert de Corry, and Adam de Corry, Keeper of the Castle of Lochmaben, and Walter de Corry and others.

All historians of Scotland mention four families as being pre-eminent at this period, viz.: the Bruces, the Baliols, the Carliles and the Corries.

The Carliles claimed direct descent from Malcolm II of Scotland. Sir William Carlile married Margaret, sister of Robert Bruce, and their second son "Thomas of Torthowald," was killed at the Battle of Durham, 1346, fighting for King David II. He left an only child, Susanna, who married Sir Robert de Corry.

A Charter of Robert Bruce, to his brother-in-law, Sir William de Carlile, calls said Thomas de Carlile "the King's sister's son," and another Charter, dated at Melrose, 1363, from King David II, in favor of Susanna de Carlyle and her husband, Robert de Corrie, called the deceased Thomas Carlyle, "the King's blood relation," and grants to his dau. and her husband, Robert de Corrie, the lands along the south coast of Dumfrieshire which had belonged to her grandfather, Sir William Carlile.

Sir William Fisher, in his "Annandale Family Book," mentions a Charter to Adam de Corrie, March 29, 1329, and to "John, Laird of Corrie," 1327. Latter as having lands in the barony of Butill, Caslegowry, Chapeltown, and Cagtown.

In an old manuscript now at "Thirlestane," Cheltenham, England, is found this reference to the Corries: "The family of Corry was formerly remarkable in Scotland for their vallour by ye frequint warrs whych somestymes hapened betwene England and Scotland."

An old paper, now out of print, called "Dryfesdale Olde Church-yard," contains the legendary and popular traditional history of Sir John de Corry of Corrie, and of his prodigious feats of strength and high valor, under command of Sir William Wallace, "who knighted him upon the tented field," and, in a list of Scotch prisoners in the Castles of Rochester, Leeds and Tunbridge, John Corrie, Knight, is named. He was taken prisoner in the Battle of the Castle of Dunbar, and April 7th, 1299, was exchanged with William of Glay.

The same records make mention of Thomas Carlile, who was killed at the Battle of Durham, 1346.

"Thomas de Torthowald was one of a gallant band of Scotch Knights who seeing King David II surrounded by a phalanx of the English enemy, successfully volunteered his rescue, from such alarming peril."

The Charter dated Oct. 18, 1362, granted by King David II, to Thomas Carlile's dau. Susanna and "to her Laird of Corrie," husband, makes mention that "Sir Thomas de Carlile had died in our presence, defending our person, at the Battle of Durham."

At this time in Scotland were Sir Walter, Sir Nicholas, Sir Gilbert and Sir Adam de Corry, besides John, Laird of Corrie, and John de Corrie, his son.

Gilbert de Corry was at this time Keeper of Lochdoon Castle, and besides the barony of Corrie, comprising the modern parish of Hutton and Corrie, they were owners also of Keldwood, in the modern Cumberland parish, of Kirk Andrews upon Esk, Comlongan and Ruthwell, the barony of Newbie, baronies of Stapleton and Robgill and part of the parish of St. Patrick, now divided into Kirkpatrick, Fleming and Gretna, which includes the ruins of ancient Redkirk and the celebrated Lochmaben Stone, where the ancient Treaties were signed with the English, but in 1484, George Corry took sides with the insurgents against the King and he was outlawed and his property confiscated. His brothers, Thomas and William Corry, retained large portions of the family lands and these lands remained in the possession of their descendants, till the beginning of the 16th century. In 1529 Thomas Corry of Keldwood and Newbie, was appointed King's Treasurer, and married a dau. of Lord Herries.

Thus we find from the records that three of the Chief fortified castles of Scotland were in the keeping of three Corries from the year 1291-1333. Walter de Corrie, Constable of the Castle of Dumfries, Gilbert de Corrie, Keeper of the Castle of Lochdoon, and Adam de Corrie, Keeper of Lochmaben Castle.

"Lochdoon" is described as "a beautiful piece of water on the borders of the Stewartry of Kirkcudbright. It is nine miles long and has a rocky coast. The ruins of the old castle are still to be seen upon an island in the loch."

"The great Royal Castle of Lochmaben was built by the Bruces, and is said to have had walls 12 feet thick. The King of Scotland retained his castle in his own hands, and the sovereigns frequently made it their temporary residence. The ruins of this castle still remain; south of the town of Lochmaben lies the castle loch, a large and beautiful sheet of water  $1\frac{1}{2}$  miles long and 1 mile wide. The castle is surrounded by three deep ditches each of which was filled with water from the loch that met on either side. The inner ditch went through the castle within which there was a basin for holding and sheltering the boats. Before the union of the crowns a garrison of 200 men was constantly kept there. The Constable, or Hereditary Keeper of the Castle, had a salary of 300£. (The scale of values was 25 times higher than at present, which makes the salary £7,500 or \$37,500, together with the fishing of the lochs and for the maintenance of the garrison, what was called the "Laird-a-mart" cow, which was one of the best fat cows out of every parish in Annandale." Near the loch and the protecting castle grew up the little town of Lochmaben. In 1333 Adam de Corrie was Hereditary Keeper, or Constable of this Castle. An old rhyme has this:

"Lochmaben stands most beautiful
Near unto Annanside
In olde tyme Kings and Princes there
For safety did abide."

The historical "Lochmaben stone" is here, where were signed the old Treaties with the English. This stone measures 118 cubic feet and weight upwards of 20 tons. It lies in the parish of Gretna, near the remains of a Druidical Temple.

The old Castle of Comlongan, (one of the Scotch homes of the Corries) is in the parish of Ruthwell, and is still standing. It was built 60 feet square by 90 feet high, the walls being of sufficient thickness to admit of small apartments within them. In the parish of Hutton and Corrie are still to be seen ruins of the ancient "Tower of Lun" (Lunnely), another one-time residence of the family of Corrie. According to tradition it was burned by the family of "Bells of Blackwood House" who carried off a daughter of the Corries. Its site is now a part of the farm of "Corrie Mains." The ruins show it to have been a tower of considerable height, the south gable is all that remains. It stood 30 feet high on the bank of the water of Milk, about six miles east of the junction of the Milk and Corrie rivers, at the farm of Balstock. "Surrounded on three sides by the river, its situation is very beautiful. There are still some remains of the Deer Park which almost surrounds the farms of Penlaw and Park Cleughfoot."

"Keldwood, is still another Corrie home. It lies three miles from Dumfries. The present farmhouse stands on a low hill, looking east, on the wide extent of Lochar-Moss, and the lands stretched towards Comlongan, and that to Newbie."

From the frequent recurrence of the name of Robert Corry, or Cory, in the Norfolk, England, line, I am inclined to believe that that branch sprang from Robert de Corry and Susanna Carlile, and according to dates, the Robert Cory, who settled at "Bramerton Hall," Norwich, in 1399, might have been a grandson.

Norfolk Descent of the Cory Family, compiled by Mr. William M. Robinson, of Grand Rapids, Mich.

Following are a few references to these men I found in the Histories of Norfolk and in the Harlean MSS. and "Visitations" of Norfolk:

Bramerton is situated four miles southeast from Norwich. The name was said to signify "Brad-mer-Town" (Broad-mer Town). to which Broad Mere belongs a swan mark to this day, and at the time of the Conquest the "mere" was four furlongs long and two and one-half broad. Nearby is the old Church of St. Peter's, built before the Conquest. And in this Church may be seen many tombs and brasses to the Corys, accompanied by the Cory Arms and Crest, "A demi-griffin, or, issuant from a ducal coronet, proper."

One reads, "Here lieth Thomas Corie, Esq., only son of Francis Corie and Anne, dau. of Sir John Corbet of Sprowston, died 1682."

There is also one to "Francis Corie, Esq., and Ann, his wife."

A brass by the altar rails reads, "Here lieth the body of Robert Cory, who after long and tedious sickness of above four years continuance, which he endured with patience, died the 7th of August, A. D. 1629." (This is probably the father of Sir John Cory, who was knighted by James I., in 1612.)

Francis Blomefield, in his "History of Norfolk," gives this description of "Bramerton Hall":

"Bramerton Hall is pleasantly situated against the east side of Bramerton Heath. It was built by the Cories, who have been owners of estates here since 1403 (but in an old book called 'Perlustration,' it is claimed 'the Cories first settled in Norfolk, A. D. 1399, coming there from Scotland'), when Robert Corie first settled there, having purchased an estate of William Langton of Bramerton and Maud, his wife. The next is William Corie, whose 2nd son, Francis, of 'Bramerton Hall,' married Grace Broune (Brown), dau. of Mr. Broune, of the Manor of Tocalneston, Esq., and had Thomas Corie, of Norwich, Esq., who died 1590." (Thomas Corie, who married Barbara Farrar.)

John Chambers says of "Bramerton Hall": "The old Hall was pulled down, but the venerable avenue of elms still remains. The family portraits of the Corys, which are said to have been numerous, were dispersed but some of them are still in the possession of the various branches of this ancient family. The present head of Immanuel College, Rev. Dr. Cory, Robert Cory, Esq., of Great Ormesby, and Rev. Mr. Cory, of Kettlestone, are some of the English descendants of this branch."

Mr. William F. Cory, of Newark, N. J., made a visit to Bramerton Hall, August 10, 1912, and says that he found from the records there that the Hall was built by the Corys, and occupied by them from 1399 to 1682, nearly 300 years. The Hall was pulled down and partly rebuilt in 1760, in 1824, and again in 1870, and that it is now owned and occupied by a Mr. Blake.

In Vol. III, page 356, Blomefield's Norfolk, is the following note referring to Thomas Cory, who died 1590.

"In 1590 died Mr. Thomas Cory, of Norwich, Esq., and bequeathed divers messages, etc., etc., to his wife for six years, and then the Mayor to have them, till Thomas Cory, his son, came of age, and the Chamberlain to have the profits for the years following, to be lent out to young men, dwelling in West Wymer Ward, by 5 £, 10 sh apiece, and 6 £, 13 sh, 4 p, for a piece of plate, to be used at the Mayor's table, with this and other money added by the city in 1597. A standing cup, double gilt, of 53 ounces and  $\frac{3}{4}$  weight, was purchased and appointed, for the use of the Mayor, for the time being and forever." In the old Church of St. Gregory in Norwich may be seen the tomb 'To Sir Thomas Cory, Died Sep. 16, 1590,' with the Cory Arms, and a Latin inscription signifying that at the time of his death he was 'Speaker of the House.'"

The old Church of "St. John Madder-Market" in Norwich was founded before the Confessor's time and took its name from the market held at that time in the north part for the sale of madder, used in dyeing. It was originally dedicated to the Holy Trinity and St. John Baptist.

"Elizabeth, wife of Sir Thomas Corrie," lies here. "Daughter of Christopher Layer, second son of Christopher Layer 1st, Mayor of Norwich, born 20th of Sept., 1608, and died Feb. 19, 1682." (Possibly the parents of John 1st of Southold.) The Cory Arms are often met with in this Church: "Sable, on a chevron, between 3 griffin's heads erased, or, as many estoiles, gules."

Blomefield has the following note, Vol. VI, page 354:

Christopher Layer 2nd, son of Christopher 1st, Mayor of Norwich, married Elizabeth Rugge, dau. of William of Felmingham, gent, and Elizabeth, their dau., married Thomas Cory, Esq., and is buried in St. John Madder-Market."

The family of Layer, in Norwich, were descended from

1. George Layer from Bury, in Suffolk, 1429. He increased his estates by his marriage to Margaret, dau. and sole heiress of Sir John Beautifont, Esq.

2. William, son and heir, was Sheriff of Norwich, 1526, Mayor 1537, and is buried in Church of St. John Madder-Market, with his wife.

3. John Layer, son of William, married Elizabeth, dau. of John Marsham, of Norwich. He died seized of great estates in Saxham, Faverton, Westrey, Middleton and Lowestoft, in Suffolk.

4. Christopher, eldest son and heir, who purchased "Boton." He was a merchant of Norwich in 1561; Sheriff of Norwich 1596; Mayor '81 and '89, and Burgess in Parliament for Norwich, '84 and '96. He was buried in St. John Madder-Market in 1600. Seized, of Boton, Saxham, Faverton, Middleton, Westrey and Lowestoft. In 1604, Barbara, his wife, dau. of Augustine Stewart, of Norwich, was buried by him, leaving three sons and five daughters.

5. Christopher Layer 2nd, married Elizabeth Rugge. Their daughter,

6. Elizabeth Layer, married Sir Thomas Cory of "Bramerton Hall," Norwich.

The Family of Marsham took their surname from the village of that name, where they inhabited from the time of Henry I.

1. John de Marsham, died at Marsham, 1325 (temp. Edward I.).

2. Thomas de Marsham, his son, removed to Norwich and was a merchant there in 1350. His son

3. Robert de Marsham lived and died at Stratton-Parva, and was the first of his name there. In Stratton-Parva Church there is a brass to him with the Marsham Arms: "Argent, crusily fitche sable, a lion passant, gules, between 2 bandlets azure, each with 3 crosslets, or."

4. Robert, his son, lived in 1465.

5. John, son and heir. His will is dated 24th of July, 1473 (13th, Edward IV). He is buried in the middle of the Nave of St. Margaret's Church beside Agnes, his wife, where may be seen a brass to them with the Marsham Arms.

6. John Marsham, son and heir, was called "Senior"; died 1515, buried in the above Church with a brass plate, inscription in Latin.

7. John, eldest son. "He was a Grocer and a great Merchant in Norwich, by which he much advanced his fortunes." In 1510 he was Sheriff of Norwich. In 1511, being in great favor with the Commons, he was sent up, at the City's charge, to Henry VIII, to justify the City in relation to their contests with the Prior and Convent of Norwich. In 1516 he was again sent to the King, with the Mayor, to settle those contests and had 3 horses and 2 servants allowed him, at public charge. In 1518 he was Mayor of Norwich and died 1525. Buried in Church of St. Madder-Market in which parish he dwelt in a large house in the windows of which are the Arms of Marsham. Elizabeth (Claxton), his wife, died 1559, and is buried beside him. In 1534 his Executors paid money towards building the Common Council Chambers in the Guild-Hall in which his portrait is still to be seen. He had five sons and eight daughters. One of these daughters,

8. Elizabeth, married John Layer. Their son,

9. Christopher Layer, married Barbara Stewart. Their son,

10. Christopher Layer 2nd, married Elizabeth Ruge. Their daughter,

11. Elizabeth Layer, married Sir Thomas Cory, of "Bremerton Hall," Norwich.

Blomefield says: "John Marsham built the corner house over against the Duke's Palace, on the west side of St. John's Street, in the windows of which are the arms of Marsham."

Very curious inscriptions mark their resting place in the Church of St. John Madder-Market:

"Of yur Charyte pray for the soulles of John Marsham, sometye Maire of this Citte of Norwich, and Elizabeth, his wife, which John deceased the XIII day of May, in the year of our Lord God, 1525, on whose soulles, and alle Christen soulles, Jesu have Mercy."

Elizabeth Marsham's tomb reads:

"Charitable Pepyl that shall loke upon this ston,
Have John Marsham in remembrance, of yur Chartye Maire of this Cyte, somtyme was his Person, And the XIIIth Day of May, then departed he,
And Ano Domini 1525, Crist Yeres anointed
For Elizabeth, his wyffe, of yur Charyte, pray
That in the Feythe Catholick, from this Wurld departed
In the yur of Criste 1559
Ye shal not lose yur Charytible Devocion
XII Cardinals hav graunted you
XII Dayes of Pardon."

FAMILY OF BROWN OF TOCOLNESTON

Blomefield, in his "History of Norfolk," says of this family:

"The Browns of Tocolneston are an ancient family having been in this parish since Henry VI's time."

The first one of the name in the parish was William of "William's Manor," surnamed "Tocolneston" (the place of his birth).

2. Eustace de Tocolneston.
3. Hugh, held the Manor, 1196-1249.
4. Adam de Tocolneston, 1256.
5. William was knighted in 1285.
6. Richard was knighted in 1316.
7. John was knighted in 1381. In 1404 he was elected Prior of Carmelites or White Friars in Norwich. He was a Doctor of Divinity, and a man of great learning, remarkable piety and a great preacher. After this the Manor fell, by escheat, to the Lord of Forneet Manor, by whom it was held till 1570.

In 1545 William Brown succeeded to the Manor, being preceded by Thomas Brown, gent, who had it by grant from Henry, Earl of Sussex. Said Thomas Brown was Lord of Carston, Miles and Bayfield, in Norfolk.

Francis Cory, of "Bramerton Hall," Norfolk, son of William, son of Robert de Cory of Scotland, married Grace Brown of Tocolneston. From date, probably dau. of Thomas Brown of Tocolneston, or William.

Their son, Thomas Cory, married Barbara Farrar.

FARRAR FAMILY

Arms.—"Vaire or and gules, on a chief sable, 3 lions' heads argent."

The first of the name in England was Hermer, who took his name from his estate in Normandy. He accompanied William the Conqueror to England and was given by him 211 estates or "Manors" in Norfolk. Some of these Manors are mentioned as Mitford, Rudham, Launditch, Hoo, Wendlings, and Gressenhall. He built a transept in the Church of Gressenhall, called "Ferroure's Chantry."

Of the Ferrars of Gressenhall and Hoo, the first to be mentioned is

1. Alice Farrar, of Hoo, widow, whose will was dated 1400.

2. Her children mentioned are Edmund, Thomas and John. The latter is mentioned many times in the various histories of Norfolk as "John of Hoo." He married Margaret of Motstow in Norfolk. Their son,

3. Robert, who in 1536 was Mayor of Norwich. He settled in Norwich and married twice. By Anne, his 2nd wife, he had five sons and one dau., Cecilia. The sons were Sir John, Thomas, Christopher, Robert and William.

4. William, youngest son, was Mayor of Norwich, 1562, and 1575. He married Barbara Roone, and their son,

5. Richard Farrar, was Sheriff of Norwich, 1581, and 1590. He married several times. One of his wives is recorded as Anne, dau. of William Drake of Forncet, in Norfolk. Their daughter,

6. Barbara Farrar, married Thomas Cory, Esq., of "Bramerton Hall," in Norwich.

FAMILY OF DRAKE OF FORNCET, NORFOLK

Arms—"Azure, a dragon, with wings displayed, or."

Crest—(The Norfolk Drakes): A rein-deer's head, erased argent, attired, or.

Motto—"Aquilla non capit muscas" (The eagle does not catch flies).

Soon after the Conquest of Wessex by the Saxons a family or clan, called Draco or Drago, appear to have taken possession of an old Roman or British encampment, in what is now Musbury in Devonshire, England. It subsequently became known as "Mount Drake." From this family, it is said that all of the name is descended. The celebrated Sir Francis Drake, of Spanish Armada fame, belonged to the Devonshire branch of the family.

Our descent is from the Norfolkshire branch and is to be found in Harlean MSS. and the "Visitations of Norfolk" (page 366).

1. John Drake of Pulham in Norfolk married —.
2. William Drake, of Fornsett, gent, married Isabell Bokenham (Buckingham).
3. Anne, their daughter married Richard Farrar, of Norwich (in Blomefield she is called "Maud").
4. Barbara Farrar, dau. of Richard and Anne Drake Farrar, married Thomas Cory, Esq., of Norwich, who died 1590.

"Forncet, 12 miles from Norwich, is called in Domesday Book 'Fornsetta,' and was held at the time of the Great Survey, 1086, by Roger Bygot, 1st Norman Earl of Norfolk. It was at that time distinguished by having the 'Knight's Court' held there every three weeks, and to which were attributed five different officers, viz: An Auditor, a Feodary, a Collector, a Serjeant, and a Bailiff. At this Court, all the great men who held their several Manors of the Norfolk honour, were obliged to attend in person to do suit and service and to compound for Castle Guard service at the Earl's Castle in Norwich. Fornsett had two Churches, St. Mary's and St. Peter's. In the latter, is an Altar tomb with figures of a man and his wife, engraved, erected to the memory of Thomas Drake and his wife,—the inscription gone." (From John Chambers' "History of Norfolk.")

BOKENHAM, OR BUCKINGHAM FAMILY

Arms.—"Argent, a lion rampant, gules."

History gives the derivation of this family as follows:—

"The Manor of Olde Hall (Norfolk), was part of Snetterton at the time of the Conquest and in the Confessor's time. Aylwin was Lord of it. His brother,

2. Ralph, held it at the time of the Survey, 1086.
3. Richard descended of Ralph, and was succeeded by
4. Hugh, who was first surnamed Rufus, and later "de Bokenham" (of Bokenham Manor). His son,

5. William de Bokenham, married a dau. and heiress of Sir Benedict de Angerville, and his dau. inherited from him the estates of West Newton, West Hervey and Kerhalle. Their son,

6. Hugh, his son and heir,

7. Ralph, was Lord of these Manors, and patron of St. Andrew's Church, 1257.

8. Sir Hugh de Bokenham, was knighted, 1281, and married Margaret, dau. of Miles Le Parker, Esq. Their son,

9. Sir Hugh, died 1290.

10. Sir Hugh, succeeded, 1331; died 1339.

11. Latter's son —, was Lord of all the de Bokenham Manors, and died 1369, seized of the Manors of Thelvetham and Livermere, in Suffolk, and the Manors of Snetterton, Kerhalle, and Eldehalle, in Norfolk. Left his widow Julian, and son

12. Hugh. He married 1385; died 1425.

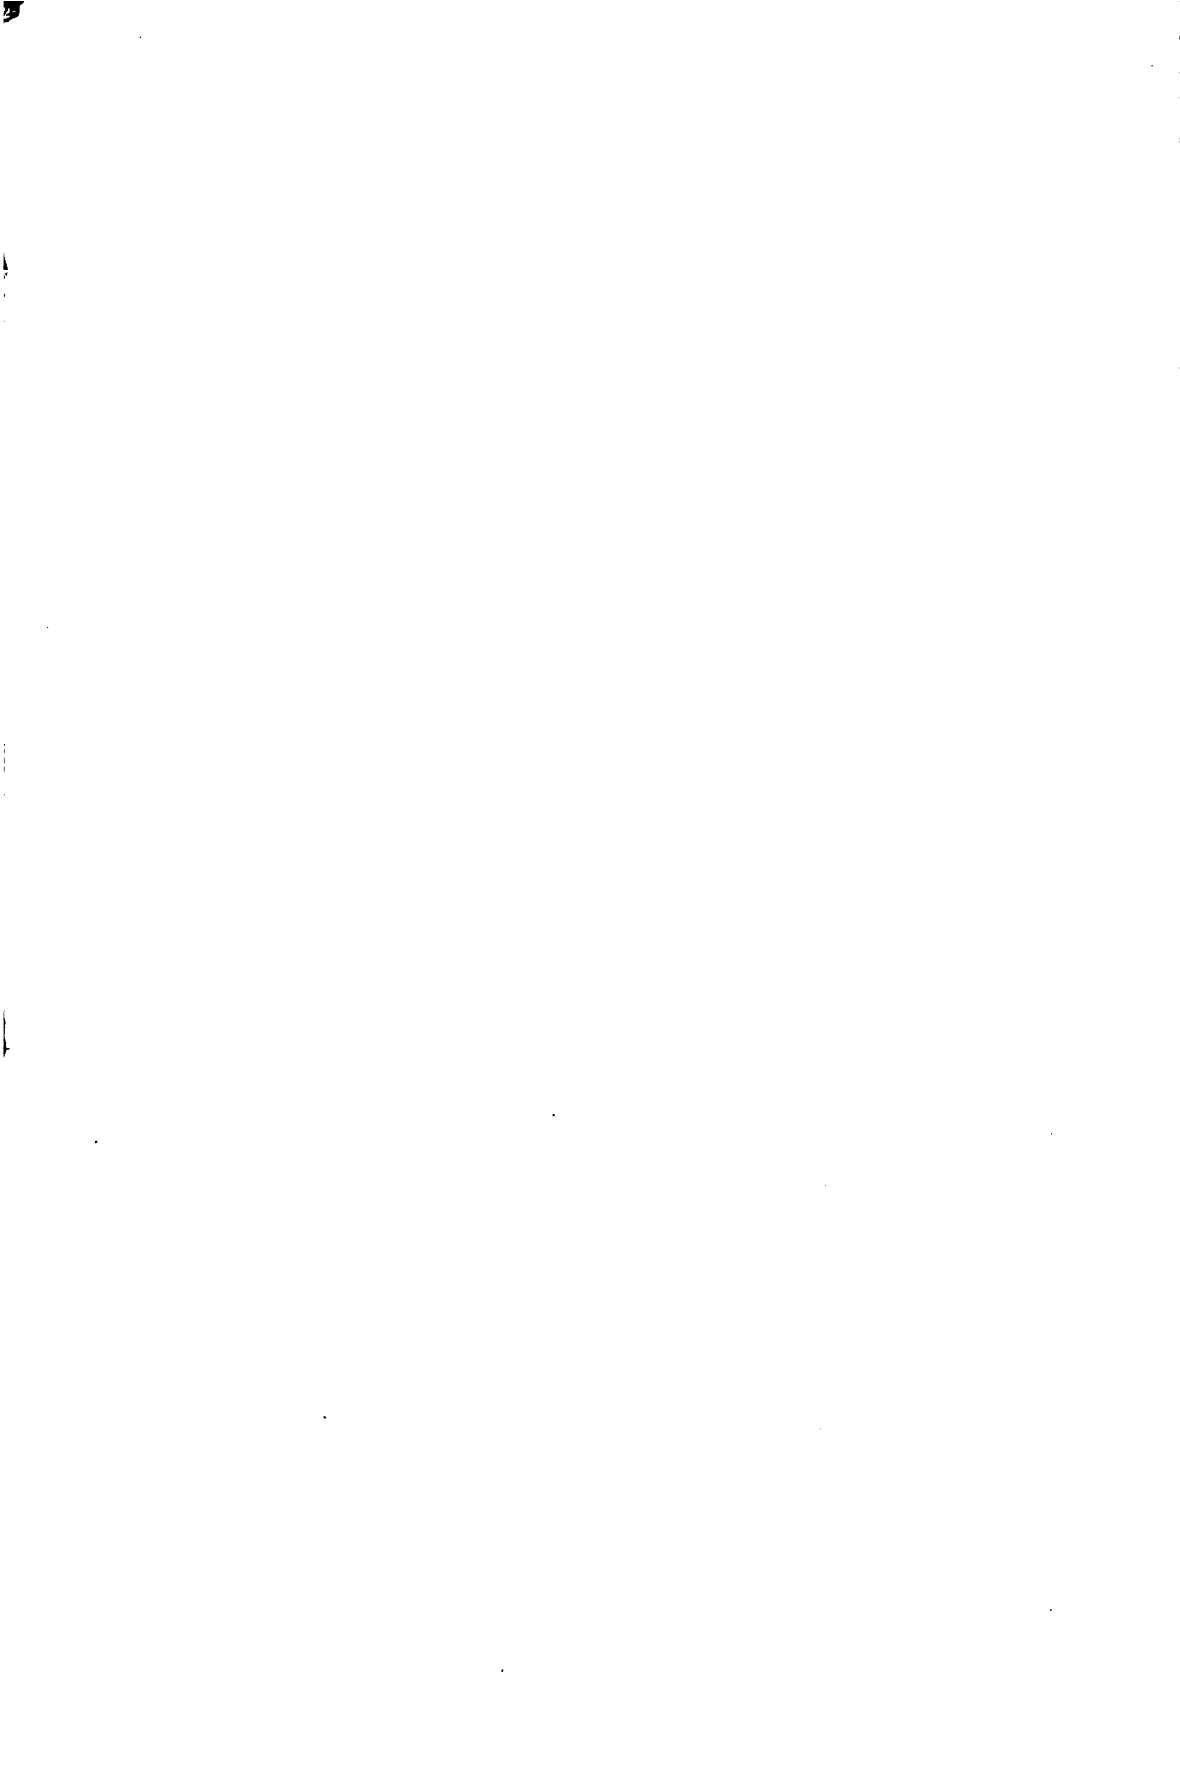

13. Edmund, died 1479.

14. George de Bokenham, married, 1st, Christian de Grey of Merton, Norfolk; married, 2nd, Margaret, dau. of Francis Worthington, Esq., of Suffolk. Their son, 15. John Bokenham.

16. Thomas, of Great Livermere, and Elizabeth, Jenour, dau. of John, of Great Dunmow, in Essex. He died Dec. 9, 1535.

17. John Bokenham, of Snetterton, Esq., last heir male of this family, born Aug., 1534; married Lucy, dau. of Clement Heigham, of Barrow, in Suffolk, Knight. She died Aug. 1, 1551, seized of Oldenhalle, Newhall, Kerhalle, in Norfolk, and Thelvetham and Livermere, in Suffolk. As many of these Manors are recorded as descending to the Drakes of Forncet, and as also the dates would correspond, Isabell Bokenham was a dau. of this John and Lucy Bokenham.
